NET-A-PORTER's groundbreaking digital fashion magazine, PorterEdit, has released its first-ever annual Best Dressed issue, with Zoë Kravitz, Margot Robbie, the Duchess of Sussex, Lupita Nyong'o, Zendaya and more appearing in the top 25.

A star in the hit HBO show Big Little Lies and Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald, 30-year-old actress Kravitz has consistently wowed on the red carpet this year in a series of showstopping looks, including a daring lace dress at the Met Gala that left her almost entirely nude on one side. Kravitz's Big Little Lies costar Nicole Kidman – who was previously engaged to Zoë's father, Lenny Kravitz – also made the list, coming in at number 19.

Meghan, Duchess of Sussex appears at number four on the list, and is the only member of the British Royal family to be included, noted for her efforts to move along some of the more stifling royal fashion traditions, such as shiny tan tights, always-immaculate hair and neutral manicures (the Duchess's choice of dark nail polish at The Fashion Awards made headline news).

Some of 2018's rising stars such as Yara Shahidi and Tessa Thompson make an impact on the top 25, while red-carpet regulars including Tracee Ellis Ross and Thandie Newton are chosen for their risk-taking approaches and support of new designers.

In addition to the top 25 celebrities, the digital fashion weekly will also release daily countdowns of best dressed fashion insiders, brides, accessory experts, beauty heroes and models – where the battle to see who would win amongst the Hadid sisters, Bella and Gigi, was closely fought, with Gigi finally triumphing.
